NUANCED INTERPLAY BETWEEN THE FINEST WOOD VENEERS, DEEP HUES
AND A HIGHLY ARCHITECTURED
IMPRINT PATTERN

Borg! decorative panels are produced using a technique specifically designed to give wood a rich texture and to create an original effect of depth.

Softening and then pressing leaves the wood with a 3-D imprint that plays on shadows and light. In fact, the name of this latest collection by Marotte was inspired by the sound the industrial press makes when it embosses veneer.

Six new molds inspired by artisan woodwork were designed for the Borg! collection. It took over a year to design and fine-tune these textures that give panels a simple natural look, making them suitable for a variety of interior projects.

Panels are available in six natural veneers, such as Oak Aurea – selected for the delicacy of grain and geometric straight lines – or Koto Kefe – selected for its intense hues. Each veneer then undergoes embossing, which brings out a highly architected texture. Skarp gives the look of careful hand-chiseled woodwork whereas Fara offers a scratched appearance and Drapa a relief similar to a beehive.

Wonder Finish

Wood panels in the Borg! collection are covered with Wonder Finish. VOC and formaldehyde free, this single-coat oil gives panels a perfectly natural look while making them heat- and water-resistant. It enhances the veneer, deepening both contrasts and textures.

Easy Installation

In addition, these decorative panels are very easy to install. Ideal for interior decoration, they have multiple uses: walls, doors, furniture and even ceilings. They are simply glued to plywood, MDF or particleboard substrates using a neoprene or vinyl adhesive.

Marotte also offers edge bandings in wood veneer matching the veneers of the six panels, as well as a Wonder Finish kit. These two additional products make it possible for clients to easily put the finishing touches on any project that includes panels from the Borg! collection.

“Boasting impressive subtlety, these decorative panels bestow both a natural and a modern character on spaces, and combine perfectly with most other materials used by developers and designers,” says Claudine François, Creative Director of Ober Group.
